III. Valuation Analysis

Approaches (VDPL, HPPL)

As per the Indian Valuation Standard -103 issued by ICAI, A valuer can make use of one or more of the processes or methods available for each of the following valuation approaches.

1. Market Approach
2. Income Approach
3. Cost Approach

The appropriateness of a valuation approach for determining the value of an asset would depend on valuation bases and premises. In addition, some of the key factors that a valuer shall consider while determining the appropriateness of a specific valuation approach and method are:

- (a) nature of asset to be valued;
- (b) availability of adequate inputs or information and its reliability;
- (c) strengths and weakness of each valuation approach and method; and
- (d) valuation approach/method considered by market participants.

The valuation approaches and methods shall be selected in a manner which would maximize the use of relevant observable inputs and minimise the use of unobservable inputs. The price information gathered from an active market is generally considered to be a strong indicator of value.

Market Approach

Market approach is a valuation approach that uses prices and other relevant information generated by market transactions involving identical or comparable (i.e., similar) assets, liabilities or a group of assets and liabilities, such as a business.

The following are some of the instances where a valuer applies the market approach:

- (a) Where the asset to be valued or a comparable or identical asset is traded in the active market;
- (b) There is a recent, orderly transaction in the asset to be valued; or
- (c) There are recent comparable orderly transactions in identical or comparable asset(s) and information for the same is available and reliable.

Income Approach

Income approach is a valuation approach that converts maintainable or future amounts (e.g., cash flows or income and expenses) to a single current (i.e., discounted or capitalized) amount. The fair value measurement is determined on the basis of the value indicated by current market expectations about those future amounts.

This approach involves discounting future amounts (cash flows/income/cost savings) to a single present value.

The following are some of the instances where a valuer may apply the income approach:

- (a) Where the asset does not have any market comparable or comparable transaction;
- (b) Where the asset has fewer relevant market comparables; or
- (c) Where the asset is an income producing asset for which the future cash flows are available and can reasonably be projected.

Cost Approach

Cost approach is a valuation approach that reflects the amount that would be required currently to replace the service capacity of an asset (often referred to as current replacement cost).

In certain situations, historical cost of the asset may be considered by the valuer where it has been prescribed by the applicable regulations/law/guidelines or is appropriate considering the nature of the asset.

Examples of situations where a valuer applies the cost approach are:

- (a) An asset can be quickly recreated with substantially the same utility as the asset to be valued;
- (b) In case where liquidation value is to be determined; or
- (c) Income approach and/or market approach cannot be used.

Valuation Methodologies (VDPL, HPPL)

Valuation of the enterprise or its equity shares is not an exact science and ultimately depends upon what it is worth to a serious investor or buyer who may be even prepared to pay goodwill. This exercise may be carried out based on the generally accepted methodologies, the relative emphasis of each often varying with the factors such as:

- Specific nature of the business
- Listing and liquidity of the equity
- Economic life cycle in which the industry or the company is operating and
- Extent to which and comparable company information is available.

The results of this exercise could vary significantly depending upon the basis used, the specific circumstances and professional judgment of the valuer. In respect of going concerns, certain valuation techniques have evolved over time and are commonly in vogue. In this regard, we have evaluated suitability of four commonly used approaches of valuation to determine the fair value of two companies. We have used three out of four commonly used approaches for valuation. After arriving at the values based on appropriate methods, we have assigned weightings to these methods to determine the fair value for the both companies.

1) Net Assets Method (NAV):

The value arrived at under this approach is based on the estimated financial statements of the business and may be defined as Shareholder's Funds or Net Assets owned by the business. The Net Assets Value is generally used as the minimum break-up value for the transaction. This methodology calculates the underlying net Assets of the business on a book value basis or Net realizable value whichever is higher. We have used the said method as one of the methodologies to estimate the value of both companies.

2) Discounted Cash Flow Method (DCF):

We have carried out valuation the both companies under the Income Approach, specifically using the Discounted Cash Flow ("DCF") methodology. Under this approach, the value of the business is derived by estimating the future free cash flows expected to be generated by the company and discounting them to their present value using an appropriate discount rate that reflects the risks associated with such cash flows.

For the explicit forecast period, cash flows have been considered as per management's projections. To account for the period beyond the explicit forecast horizon, a Terminal Value has been computed using the Gordon Growth Model, which assumes that free cash flows will grow at a stable rate into perpetuity.

The formula applied is:

$$\text{Terminal Value} = \frac{\text{FCFF of the terminal year} \times (1+g)}{(WACC-g)}$$

Where:

- FCFF of the terminal year = Free Cash Flow to Firm in the last projected year
- g = Long-term sustainable growth rate (considered reasonable and consistent with long-term industry/economic growth)
- WACC = Weighted Average Cost of Capital, representing the required rate of return

The present value of the Terminal Value has then been added to the present value of projected cash flows to arrive at the enterprise value.

It is specifically noted that the growth rate and discount rate are professional assumptions and are subject to change depending on economic and industry conditions. The projections and assumptions are based on information provided by the management. Any significant deviation of actual performance from these assumptions may materially impact the valuation result.

3) Stock Exchange Quotation or Market Price Method:

This valuation reflects the price that the market at a point in time is prepared to pay for the shares. It is therefore influenced by the condition of the stock market, the concerns and opportunities that are seen for the business in the sector or market in which it operates.

The market price is also reflects the investor's view of the ability of the management to deliver a return on the capital it is using. In the case of companies not frequently traded, this value may be very different from the inherent value of the shares, but nevertheless forms a benchmark value. We have used this method for VENMAX DRUGS AND PHARMACEUTICALS LIMITED for the purpose of this valuation analysis which is listed on BSE Limited (Bombay Stock Exchange Limited). We have not used this method HATRI PHARMA PVT LIMITED which is not listed Companies in any Stock Exchanges.

4) Comparable Company Market Multiple Method:

Under this methodology, market multiples of comparable listed companies are computed and applied to the business being valued in order to arrive at a multiple based valuation. This approach is usually applied in case of valuation of unlisted companies. Some of the common multiples used in a valuation are listed below:

- Market Cap / Sales Multiple
- Price / Earnings Multiple
- Precedent Transactions Multiple Method

There are no exact comparable companies in this intermediates segment. Hence, we have not used Market Multiple Method for the purpose of this valuation analysis.

Valuation Analysis (VDPL):

We have carried out the valuation analysis as described above, based on the fundamental assumption of going concern for the business under consideration. The detailed analysis and the assumptions made these purpose are given below:

A. Net Asset Value Method (NAV)

In order to assess the NAV of the Company, we have used the Audited financial statements for the period ended 30 September 2025. The estimated value arrived under this approach using the share holders funds of Net Assets owned by the business as at 30 September 2025 is 1,945.12 Lakhs/-.

Accordingly, the expected proceeds from the exercise of these warrants, amounting to INR 1,088.40 lakhs, have been included in the computation of equity value (presented as an addition under receivables).

The diluted number of equity shares used for determining the value per share includes the existing issued equity shares together with the shares that would be issued upon exercise of the warrants. The decision to incorporate the warrants into the valuation is based on management representations regarding the terms and conditions of the warrants, the absence of any legal or contractual restrictions on their exercise, and the assessed probability of exercise as on the valuation date.

Readers are advised that the per-share valuation is dependent upon these assumptions. If the warrants are not exercised, the basic value per share would differ accordingly.

Market Approach	MP Method	27.75	40%	NA	NA

Notes to the above table for computation of fair equity share exchange ratio:

- NA means Not Adopted / Not Applicable.

** HPPL is not listed on any Indian Stock Exchange; consequently, Market Price Method under Market Approach is not used. Under the Market Approach other two methods are internationally accepted valuation methods (i) Company Comparable Method and, (ii) Transaction Comparable Method.

In the Company Comparable Method, the challenge arises in valuing shares based on ratios or multiples of a listed comparable company. Identifying an exact match with similar benchmarks is exceedingly difficult, and obtaining a valuation through such a process poses significant challenges. Therefore, for the purposes of this valuation, we have not considered this approach.

In the Comparable Transaction method, it is essential to compare the company with others in the same sector, commensurate with the size of the business. Unfortunately, due to the absence of any observations within this sector to check against, commensurating with the size of the business becomes unfeasible. Hence, we cannot consider it as an independent transaction, nor can it be used for benchmarking purposes.

In light of the challenges presented in the Company Comparable Method and Comparable Transaction Method, wherein identifying similar listed companies or transactions with appropriate benchmarks has proven difficult, we acknowledge the limitations in applying these approaches for valuation. Therefore, the conclusions drawn in this report are based on the alternative methods employed, recognizing the specific constraints inherent in the comparative methodologies outlined above.
